

THE RADAR HOME

BY TIFFANY JOW

⌘ QUAD SQUAD Gaudia Blasco mixes a cabana feel with a chaise, exemplifying why it's still hip to be square. The cubic aluminum canopy comes with removable panels for customizable comfort and privacy. All you'll need to add is the cabana boy. $8,185, at Apartment Zero, Penn Quarter, www.apartmentzero.com.

⌘ COMB ON IN! Like an all-grown-up clubhouse, Extremis's hip BeHive lounger will keep guests abuzz this summer. Inspired by a trampoline, the dome's flexible floor can seat a dozen guests around the Corral table at its glowing center. Starting at $23,400, through Positive Space, 1729 Irving Blvd., 214.749.1080.

SLUMBER PARTY!

For a hot night out, why go further than your own backyard?

It's no surprise that bed-themed clubs have popped up around the globe—after all, what icon is more appropriate for the nightlife scene? Now, a slew of sweet anything-but-sleep chambers lets you take full advantage of those hot summer nights by bringing a saucy setup to your own backyard. From open-air frames to flowing canopies, the haute design of these bunks is enough to keep the festivities on fire long after the lights go out. ■

⌘ PEEK-A-BOO, I SEA YOU! After a night at Current, keep the Love Boat theme afloat with Kenneth Cobonpue's steel Voyage Bed. Its cocoon of hand-woven palm leaf spines guarantees smooth sailing in even the rockiest post-club waters. $5,570, at Muleh, www.muleh.com.

⌘ FLOAT ON Resurrecting a more romantic notion of slumber, Design Mobil cradles users within its water resistant frame, crafted from New Zealand's native totara wood. This dreamboat is best for a party of two. Price furnished upon request, at Okooko, Philadelphia, www.okooko.com.
